Employment Opportunity – Supply Wild Child Outdoor Playgroup Facilitator

Do you love the outdoors? Does the idea of families exploring the forest and children climbing trees make you smile? Are you a natural at connecting with parents? Do you think risky play is the cat's meow?

Yes! Then we have an exciting opportunity for you.

Since 1975, Childreach has provided support, programs, services, and learning opportunities to parents and Early Years Professionals so that all children reach their full potential. The Wild Child Outdoor Playgroup is an innovative, unstructured, interactive parent-child program located in a variety of local forests and natural areas. The goal of the program is to educate parents on the value and benefits of outdoor free play in a natural setting and increase their confidence and competency in providing child-led, inquiry-based opportunities for their children. A key component of the program is to create warm, welcoming environment with a strong facilitator-to-parent relationship and significant parent-to-parent support. The program strives to demystify the risks of outdoor free play, so parents have the ability to strengthen their children's emotional, physical and social well-being through connection to nature. Wild Child facilitators are responsible for planning and facilitating the program, program documentation, blog writing, and promotions using social media.
